SUMMARY

Product engineer and one of the founders of Bronix, where I owned the full loop of defining, building, launching, and iterating on consumer software. I have shipped more than ten products across mobile and web, including subscription apps, AI tools, and enterprise platforms. I pair hands on engineering across the stack with a real sense of what to build next and why it matters. I watch how people actually use a product, and I let that decide what gets built and what gets cut.
